Set in the rural zone of North Claremont, this new fieldstone Craftsman house is reminiscent of a simpler time when citrus groves were the primary industry of the area. Its wide fieldstone front porch, with an ample setback from the street, provides the family with more semi-private usable outdoor space and makes this one of the most admired homes in the rural area.

Constructed for the Claremont Graduate University, this new building was designed to match the existing homes of the historic neighborhood. With its rich color and beautiful antique-style detailing, the house matches the historic fabric. It has housed the CGU School of Education for over ten years.
